C.M. Harris

My name is Charity M Harris, and I'm the founder of Purple Diamond Press, where we create children's books that inspire kindness, inclusivity, and diversity. I have always had a passion for storytelling, and I began my author journey to help children understand the value of embracing differences and being compassionate toward others.

My best-selling book, What If We Were All The Same!, has reached thousands of young readers and has been recognized by many. Over the years, I've published numerous titles, all focused on teaching important life lessons through fun and engaging stories. My experiences as a wheelchair user have further shaped my mission to write books that represent diverse characters and perspectives. I am proud to visit schools where I read to children and share the importance of kindness and friendship. In addition to writing, I love mentoring aspiring authors and helping them navigate the publishing process. With each new book, I aim to make a difference in the lives of children worldwide.

Fueled by a passion for making a difference, I became a children's author to create stories that inspire kindness, diversity, and inclusion. After facing employment challenges due to disability bias, I decided to turn my experiences into an opportunity and create my own career. With over 15 years of experience working with children, I knew the power that stories hold in shaping young minds, and I wanted to provide books where every child could feel valued and understood. Writing has allowed me to connect with children and encourage them to embrace what makes them unique while fostering compassion for others.

As a businesswoman, my mission is to build a platform that brings meaningful, impactful children's literature into homes and classrooms. Through Purple Diamond Press, I am committed to creating books that uplift, educate, and inspire children to be leaders in their communities. My goal is to foster a world where every child feels seen, heard, and valued, regardless of their background or abilities. By working directly with schools, teachers, and community leaders, I aim to ensure that these positive stories reach as many young readers as possible, helping them develop into compassionate and confident individuals.

Notable Mentions

I had the pleasure of sitting down with ABC7 LA news anchor Rachel Brown to discuss my bestselling children's book, What If We Were All The Same!, and its impact on promoting diversity and inclusion. In honor of Disability Employment Awareness Month, we also explored my personal journey of overcoming disability bias and creating my own career as a children's author. In January 2021, San Francisco 49ers Defensive End Arik Armstead read What If We Were All The Same! to a group of 1st graders, sharing its message of kindness and diversity. The team generously donated over 2,000 copies of the book to schools, making a lasting impact on young readers throughout the community.

My bestselling children's book, What If We Were All The Same!, was featured on the BBC's CBeebies Lunchtime Story program, where it was read to young viewers across the UK. The story's message of embracing differences resonated with children, helping to promote kindness and inclusion on an international platform.

I absolutely love visiting schools and connecting with students through my interactive readings and activities that make storytelling come alive. These visits ignite a passion for reading while teaching important lessons on kindness, diversity, and inclusion. Promoting literacy is essential because it empowers children to explore their imaginations, build confidence, and develop the skills they need to succeed in life. All of my school visits are impactful with two story readings, friendship presentation, service dog presentation, and student Q&A

It is also a pleasure to visit libraries, festivals, and bookstores to read my books to families and children.

“
What a wonderful book for children. The illustrations are wonderful and relate perfectly with the inclusiveness of all skin colors and if a child can walk or have a need for a wheelchair or other device. Those are huge points that all kids need to grasp. So much so that I wrote a kids' book on the same ideals...

God's Gifts To Us

“
Being unique is celebrated throughout this amazing book. This is a deep message for all ages. I highly recommend this book.

What If We Were All The Same!

“
Great book addressing a unique topic! My daughter asks for this book to be read to her on a regular basis. It offers a chance for children to build perspective and to challenge stereotypes/negative thinking that sometimes surround our differences.

Just Because...

“
As an assistant principal, I read this book to a class of kindergarten students. They responded so well to the beautiful pictures & messages. They could understand what the meaning and theme of the book was and they loved how it rhymed and had fun comparisons to animals...

What If We Were All The Same!

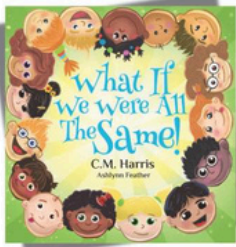

“
An interesting children's picture book. Educates children about using money. The illustrations are lovely, colourful and bright too. It's a thumbs up from me.

A Penny In My Pocket

Out of all the great qualities of this book one of them stood out to me the most, the reading and tracing practices. Not only does it have the amazing coloring aspect, but it really increases practice time and getting familiar with letters for children!
